Office Action Summary

Part of Paper No./Mail Date 20050815

Art Unit: 2832

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language

2. Claims 1-2 and 4-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Koyama (2005/0062581). Koyama discloses the claimed invention at Figs. 4a-4D, with resistance element 1, first and second conductive layers 12b, 13b on the upper surface, and first and second electrodes 12a, 13a on the lower surface. The first conductive layer 12b is conductively connected to the first electrode layer 12a under it, through the via or first connector 1c. The second conductive layer 13b is conductively connected to the second electrode layer 13a under it, through the via or first connector 1d. First conductive layer 12b substantially overlaps and faces second electrode layer 13a, while second conductive layer 12a substantially overlaps and faces first electrode layer 13b, as one can see by cutting out Fig. 4B, the top view, and layer it over Fig. 4A, the bottom view, where “substantially” is a term of degree and the tips of the triangles of the conductive and electrode layers overlap each other. In claim 2, the current path is as claimed. For claim 4, the gap at Figs. 4A and 4B is depicted as roughly 1/5-1/4 of the length at most. The thickness is more than 1/3 of the length, see par. 13, rendering the gap less than the thickness. Or see par. 56, with gap distance of 0.27mm, and thickness at par. 13 at 0.62mm. For claim 5, the polymer is PTC at par. 3. For claims 6-7, copper for the layers is disclosed at par. 53. For claim 8, see the vias 1c and 1d noted above each on different sides. In claim 9, the vias are through holes (see col. 6 of Zhang et al. '510 where an aperture (hole) can be a closed or open cross section, the aperture or hole of Koyama an open cross section). For claim 10, the gap is rectangular. For claim 11, the electrodes are as claimed. In claims 12-13, the current paths are as claimed as they must be since the device is the same as that of applicant as claimed, and similar to that as disclosed.

3. Applicant's arguments filed 7/1/2005 have been fully considered but they are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a).

Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
